

More and more, in a sustainable development approach, the GDP is no longer the only value to take into account.

The quality of life and the well being of the population has now to be taken into account.

Most of the environmental reasons to go underground also increase the well-being of the population and should therefore be taken into account